SRI LANKA

With the opening of its international borders for tourists in January 2021, Sri Lanka has been working towards regaining its foothold in the tourism map. With quarantine and testing protocols in place, the Sri Lanka Tourism Development Authority (SLDTA) is working towards improving its plan of travel in “biosafety bubbles”.

The country is also looking to tap into its domestic travellers who remain largely untapped at the present. According to an expert from CNN's article in February 2021, Dhammika Wijesinghe, Director General of the SLTDA said that the organisation is working on formulating a sustainable tourism model for the country and towards promoting its stunning attractions to the domestic clientele.

Sri Lanka has recorded a 96% recovery rate as on 03 March 2021. For detailed statistics, Please click here.
