Why Early Monsoon Is Prime for Herping

- Amphibian Breeding Season: Frogs become highly active, calling and mating, making them easier to locate and observe.

- Snake Activity Peaks: Many snakes emerge to prey on breeding frogs, increasing chances of sightings.
- Humidity & Rainfall: Moist conditions bring out a wide range of reptiles and amphibians, especially nocturnal species.
- Photographic Opportunities: Dewy foliage, vibrant colors, and active fauna make for stunning macro photography.

Best Time of Day

- Evenings & Nights: Most herpetofauna are nocturnal, so dusk to midnight is prime for field sessions.
- Early Mornings: Good for spotting diurnal species like lizards and certain snakes basking or hunting.
